

Ending Phenomena in Supervision

All of the kinds of endings below are commonly experienced, by both practitioner and supervisee! They are a clue to past or recent unresolved endings. If you habitually finish working with your supervisees in one of these ways, some attention needs to be paid to what endings are being reactivated within you and whether therapeutic work is needed to properly attend to difficult or painful endings. Now see the next handout on Good Practice for Healthy Endings.

Sticky endings

Loose Endings

Grief-type Endings

Cut & Run Endings

Bin Bag Endings

Raw Endings

Doorknob Comments

